Implications of Jamaica’s Data Protection Act

Nicola Whyms-Stone

Born in the cool hills of Manchester, Nicola was raised firstly in the mountains of Jamaica and then on the beaches of the Cayman Islands after her parents migrated there in the 1980’s.

She received her tertiary education in Jamaica and England and holds a B.Sc. in Accounts and Economics from the University of the West Indies and an LLB from the University of Liverpool. After being called to the UK bar she returned home to be called to the bar in Jamaica in 2003 and joined the law firm of Myers Fletcher & Gordon in their Commercial Department.

In 2008 she joined National Commercial Bank Jamaica Limited as Legal Counsel in their Group Legal and Compliance Division and is also currently the Company Secretary of all of the NCB entities which operate in the Cayman Islands.

Nicola is a member of the Commercial Law Sub-Committee of the Jamaica Bar Association, is a PADI open water certified scuba diver, is married to Architect Christopher Whyms-Stone, and is the proud mother of three children, Amalia, Jude and Gia.
